Before you open your door, you look around to make sure nobody is around. Right as you think you are in the clear, you spot someone walking around. You squint to see if the person is acting normal or if they are rabid. You see the person is holding a shotgun and is walking around with a vest that says "Police" on it. You wait in your car just a little longer to see if he changes his act. The man turns to walk in the other direction. You think to yourself and know that he must be of help because he is patrolling the front entrance. You roll down your window and yell out to him. The man looks over to you.
"Do you need help ma'am?"
You yell back that you do.
"Okay, come out the vehicle and I will protect you as you run over.", he says.
You open your car door and make a run for it. Right as you start to run a zombie comes chasing after you. The police officer points his gun at it and waits till you get closer. You run as fast as you can and get closer to the entrance. The police officer yells at you to turn out of his way. You turn and hear a loud noise. The police officer shot his gun and killed the zombie. You continue to run over to him.
Finally you reach him and thank him for saving your life.
"I am glad you made it, go inside and get to safety.", he says.
As you walk into the entrance you see many people walking around.
"Welcome to the safe zone", says a woman to the left of you.
You won!

Your Journey

You walk out of the plane and step into the daylight sun. You look down at the runway you just landed on. You step down the airplane steps and take your pilot hat off. You breathe out heavily and think about the successful flight you just had. Now that you finished your flight for the day, you can go back home and relax before you leave for New York tomorrow.
You unlock your car and get in the drivers seat. You turn on your engine and begin your drive home.
Right as you turn on your radio you hear: "This is an EMERGENCY NOTIFICATION from the Center for Disease Control. As of this moment, the health crisis in the United States has spread to unsafe levels and a COMPLETE EVACUATION has been ordered. Be cautious of your surroundings and be safe. Avoid contact with others that have been affected. Please evacuate to the Staples Center as we have contained the area and will be flying survivors to safer locations."
The message ends and you are stopped at a red light confused on what just happened. You look outside of your window and see a lady running rapidly. You look behind her and see that someone is chasing her.
BOOM
You quickly turn to the front of your car and see a man who slammed his hand on your hood.
"They are coming!! Get out of here!"
He gets tackled by another person. The light turns green.
Choice 1: Check on the guy
Choice 2: Drive away

You exit out of your car and run over to help the woman. Gripping your nailed bat, you prepare to swing at the man chasing her. As she passes you, you swing your arms and hit the man in the head with your bat. He falls to the floor with your bat stuck in him.
The woman turns to you and looks frightened to death. You ask her if she is okay. "Please don't hurt me!!" You put up your hands and tell her that you aren't going to hurt her, you are there to help. "Stay away from me!!" She says as she turns around and runs off.
You watch her run off to another car where she slams the window open to get inside. You can see another figure past her car beginning to walk towards the same car. You yell to her to warn her of the man approaching her but it's too late. The person reaches her as she sits in the car and pulls her out of the broken window. The person throws her body on the floor and attacks her. You freak out and run to go grab your nailed bat left in the body of the monster you killed. You turn around to run to your car when you suddenly make eye contact with the monster that attacked the woman. She's bleeding out on the floor.
Choice 1: Make a run to your car
Choice 2: Fight the monster that attacked the woman

You make a move toward the monster ahead. The monster begins to sprint towards you. It screams and makes grunting noises as it moves toward you quickly. You stop walking forward and prepare your bat to hit the zombie ahead. As it comes close enough, you swing your bat and hit the monster right in the head. The body falls on the floor and you look over it in accomplishment. "Shoot I've been on fire today", you say to yourself. You reach down to grab the bat out of the monster's head and walk to your car. You get in your car and throw your bat in the passenger side. You reach to turn on the radio and switch the Channels till you find the best station. You felt high off being able to beat your rivals today and for beating two monster's trying to kill you. You felt invincible.
As you begin to drive off, your driver's side tire pops. You curse to yourself and get out to see what caused the tire to pop. You pick up a nail and realize it came from your bat. You know you have a spare in the back of the car and go to grab it. You pop open the trunk and reach in to grab the tire.
All of a sudden you hear a growl from behind you. Your arm is then pulled from the person behind and you quickly turn around. You see that it is the girl that was attacked from the monster you killed. Her eyes were red like the others and you tried to push her off. She caught your other arm as you were about to push her off and she bit it hard. You yell in pain and find yourself weak. You fall against your car and feel her bite your shoulder next. Everything eventually goes black.
You lost.

Your Journey

You throw a criminal into the holding cell that you have at the department. You caught another criminal today. You go back to your desk to fill out your paperwork so you can leave for the day.
"Hey Vincente, have you heard the news lately. There is some kind of virus going around. They don't know what's causing it but they say to evacuate the state."
You look at your coworker weirdly and tell them that they are joking.
"Sure don't believe me but just watch out. If you want to be safe I would say get to the evacuation site at the Brooklyn Police Department."
You watch your coworker walk away. You laugh at the joke your coworker was pulling on you.
"Hey Vincente, everyone is heading out for the day. Don't stay too late working, go get some rest and spend some time with your family."
You look at your boss and tell him you won't stay too late. He walks away and so does everyone else. You are the only one left for the night so you turn on the radio in the department to get some background noise.
"This is an EMERGENCY NOTIFICATION from the Center for Disease Control. As of this moment, the health crisis in the United States has spread to unsafe levels and a COMPLETE EVACUATION has been ordered. Be cautious of your surroundings and be safe. Avoid contact with others that have been affected. Please evacuate to the Brooklyn Police Department as we have contained the area and will be flying survivors to safer locations."
You look at your radio confused. I guess my coworker was being serious. You get up to call your family and there is no answer. You grab your keys off your desk and go to your patrol car.
Inside your patrol car, you turn your engine on and drive off. When you are driving, you see someone on the side of the road yelling for help.
Choice 1: Help the person
Choice 2: Continue to the safe zone
2

You turn your head away from helping the person and continue to drive off.
After driving for some while, you get a call from your wife. You answer the phone.

You tell your wife to stay where she is and that you would go get them.
"Okay, we will stay at the house and wait for you."
Right as you are about to hang up someone runs in front of your moving car. You drop your phone and slam on the breaks.

You get out of your car to check on the person that you just hit. When you look at the body it isn't moving. You bend down to check the person's pulse and you don't feel anything. You begin to try to do CPR on the body to see if you could save the person. After some time you can't revive the person. Out of anger and frustration you begin to kick your car.
Once you calm down, you gather yourself together and walk to your car. Before you open the door, you hear the woman gasp f or air. You run over to her and see her chest moving up and down. You bend down next to her and try to open her eyes. She isn't opening her eyes and you begin to shake her lightly to see if that will work.
She opens her eyes and grabs onto both of your arms. You look in her eyes and see that they are red. You try to pull back but she has too tight of a grip. She pulls you down and bites onto your neck. Your strength in your body disappears and yo u fade away.
You lost.
